

Topic 0307122 Service Mode Decoder Lock Instruction

The Service Mode Decoder Lock instruction is an operations mode instruction used to prevent service mode programming of decoders using low-end systems where there is no programming track. Using this method eliminates the problem of re-programming every decoder on the layout to the same address when the layout is used as the service mode track.